Free Node provides free hardware, software, and support for hosting and operating your own node. Included is bgp router interface. Free node is a directory-based, free, open source distributed search engine. The directory listing is optimized for human users, with usage of the Google search engine. To help improve FreeNode, we request donations to fund FreeNode's ongoing development. If you like the software, please consider funding it. As suggested by the design, groups of FreeNode nodes (called clusters) can be found in clusters.org. The underlying approach of FreeNode is based on the Bittorrent software. A more detailed description of the "FreeNode" name is given at the bottom of this page. FreeNode provides public peer-to-peer file sharing and mirroring technology. Any file hosted on a FreeNode server can be shared with other FreeNode users. This is achieved by uploading the file to the FreeNode servers, where it can be accessed by all other FreeNode users. We are now just one step away from our goals. We need help to finance our costs. For this purpose, we are asking for support. For more information about the costs, please look under the development section. The PayPal support has been closed. If you are a developer or are interested in contributing, you can make a donation. Other people can learn from our code base and our design decisions. Right now, we are looking for sponsors, members, seeders, and aggregators.
