Category:Video games with downloadable content Category:Windows games Category:Windows-only gamesQ: Sending AJAX requests from Node.js to multiple servers I have a Node.js/Express application that has ~10 AJAX requests. Every request should be sent to a different server, which is hosted on different ports. Currently, there is a single call made by the Express server that does the actual work, which then calls each request with the necessary parameters. Is there a way to do this more efficiently? It feels like one of those things that takes too much time to write, and then may actually be a bit better. A: You can certainly do that in another way. For example, Express.js allows you to use multiple servers from multiple ports as well using something like `app.use('/server_1', function(req, res, next){ // handle server 1 req/response }); app.use('/server_2', function(req, res, next){ // handle server 2 req/response }); ...` Here you'll need one server for each of the purpose and you can then use `res.redirect()` or `res.send()` to send the response depending on the request. The major goal of this proposal is to explore the molecular mechanisms of how the c-myc protein specifically targets the gene for the B cell translocated oncogene, ABL1, and thereby up-regulates the expression of the blk/abl protein tyrosine kinase in myeloid cells. The Specific Aims of the proposed studies are: 1. To study the regulation of c-myc transcription in a cloned CML cell line and an engineered hematopoietic cell line with the normal c-myc gene linked to the ABL1 gene. 2. To study 3da54e8ca3
