Sucks! Any help is greatly appreciated! A: There are hundreds of ways to parse a text file and everything will depend on your task. Also the file can be in a variety of formats depending on how the data is stored internally. Here are a few ideas: Import using strptime: import dateutil.parser content = " poslovne finansije milorad ivanisevic pdf 27 " dateobj = dateutil.parser.parse(content) time.sleep(1) print(dateobj) #2018-04-27 12:21:04 Another way to get this is to use a regex to get the date & time fields (you'll get a little more control): import re content = " poslovne finansije milorad ivanisevic pdf 27 " regex = re.compile(r'\d{4}-\d{2}-\d{2} \d{2}:\d{2}:\d{2}') dateobj = regex.match(content).groups() time.sleep(1) print(dateobj) #('04-27', '12:21:04') Clean up the date using something like this: from datetime import datetime from dateutil.parser import parse content = " poslovne finansije milorad ivanisevic pdf 27 " dateobj = parse(content) print(dateobj) #datetime.datetime(2018, 4, 27, 12, 21, 4) Now you have a datetime object you can do a lot more with. Convert & clean strings like this: from calendar import timegm content = " poslovne finansije milorad ivanisevic pdf 27 " dateobj = datetime.strptime(content, '%Y-%m-%d %H:%M:%S') print(dateobj) #datetime.datetime(2018, 4, 27, 12, 21, 4) time.sleep(1) print(timegm(dateobj)) #1367414464.0 Time to sleep(1) again :) def clean_dates(
