SoundBlocks is a musical performance game. Explore and unlock a world of music as you weave sound blocks into a tense musical tension. Make your own music and experience music like never before. Drop, Recycle, and Stack sound blocks into a loop, then step-sequentially weave each block into a rhythmic, yet seemingly inconsistent, sequence. Within this rhythmic soundscape, sound blocks of a given pitch add counterpoint, while those of a higher or lower pitch create tension or resolution. The freer you are, the more your loops interact. Turn the loop into a musical instrument by playing and combining the sound blocks according to your timing, or focus on achieving the goal, and let your new music come from anywhere. From "joyful" to "emotional," each player will hear a different version of the game. Features: * 20 highly playable, creative, and challenging levels * 12 musical voices, 12 key signatures, 7 musical modes * 400 beats per minute * Endlessly looped sequences * Export to.wav * Freely manipulate sound blocks in a variety of ways * Multi-touch support for all iPhone devices * Ideal for playing on the go or home * Includes the full SoundBlocks application. (DAY 1 - FISHING ENTRIES BEGIN) This game started as an experiment in my spare time and there is a lot of room for improvement and feedback. There is no main goal other than to have fun and learn how to do this game with the minimum of coding and the maximum possible fun. You can compete with your catch or just have some fun with others. You can also just play it alone to see how it evolves... This game is based on Google's Cardboard. No other device is needed. The fishing ring allows you to interact with the fish when you have the item placed in the right position. Interaction happens when the fish has its nose inside the ring. If the fish doesn't like the smell of the ring, it will leave. If the fish is close to the ring and you are in the right place, the fish will move towards the ring, pick it up, rest it on its nose, open its mouth for you to feed it a flake and releasing it into the water. You have to be cautious with the position and size of the ring to not break it. The player should try to catch as many fish as possible within the time of the round. You can also try to beat the others or catch the biggest fish by catching it more times in less time. A round of fishing can last a few minutes or up to one hour. Playtests or fishing events can be organized: - FishOutdoors - Forum fishing tournaments - Feel free to organize your own... Just remember that the game is still developing and it might not have all the features you want. No release date has been set as the game is still being developed but I have done all I can for the moment. Here is a video where you can try it: I will keep the game alive and updated with new features and contests. I have learned many things on my way... The more you use the game and send feedback the more I'll learn and you will see it evolving. The game is still under development... There are many possible features and the game can evolve to the point that you can do more than just fishing. c9d1549cdd

The whole game is a linear 2D platformer, with the soundtrack playing in the background and affecting gameplay and story. During the middle of the game you'll also encounter the voices of your family, which are weirdly synced with the gameplay and the story. Game "The Music Machine" Gameplay: This is a platformer game about someone searching for their missing father, or perhaps finding out they never really existed. Gameplay: The game is played in two parts: the game part, and the story. Gameplay: You start the game as a detached observer, walking through corridors of a house. You hear your voice being played in the background and eventually you get out of the house. You can listen to the cutscenes and hear your parents talk, and you can look around for clues and hints. Audio: Audio is very important, because the story takes place on a simple, yet elaborately detailed, multiple floor, 2D platformer, and the backgrounds, characters and players voice-overs are carefully designed and incredibly immersive. The music of the game is very well done, and it's the perfect extension of the experience. There is a lot of voice acting in the game, the plots twist often, the story twists often and there are moments that are just... chilling. There is much less violence than what is normally expected in the Horror genre, and that's one of the things that makes this game a special experience. What is scary about the game is how it doesn't leave you satisfied or numbed out. It doesn't have blood or guts, but it certainly gets under your skin. I think what the game actually does, is deeply disturb you, and that's why I give it a very high rating. Gameplay: The game opens with a simple, single-player linear, 2D platformer, where you are following a man, who is looking for his father who has been missing for a while. He's walking in a house with his dog, until he moves to the next house on the floor, which is already open. From there the game changes into a narrative-driven story, where the player now joins the man as he explores the house. The game is told from a first-person perspective, but the player can choose to use their camera freely, and walk around freely. This two-fold story approach works really well. The player can choose when they want to interact with the environment, make a choice

"Mo The Frog" is the fifth episode of the third season of the CBS sitcom How I Met Your Mother and 77th episode overall. It aired on November 12, 2006. Plot After the credits, the title screen says "A Very How I Met Your Mother Christmas", and the credits are in black and white. Robin is in the apartment while Barney is still asleep and, after being awoken from his nap by Ted, he asks if he is dreaming. Robin confirms that this is real life and kisses him. The gang first has dinner at Wolowitz's, where Barney meets his girlfriend, Amy. While eating, Barney stops trying to impress Amy, explaining that he could get exactly what he wants if he only pretended to have feelings for her. At home, Ted lies to Marshall and Lily that he had intercourse with Tracy during their trip to New York in the previous episode. The two reluctantly agree to let Ted keep the secret, but after the others become sober they notice Marshall and Lily have the same marks as Ted. After failing to apply for a policy with an insurance company, Lily tells him that they need to leave "the whole thing alone and move on", ending their relationship. The gang is then driven to Quinn's Pub, where Ted explains to the group how he showed his parents the photo of Robin by means of a hidden aerial camera. Lily then arranges for a friend of hers, Mary Aloe, to cook dinner at Ted's for the gang. When Ted begins to bring out the food, he reveals his chopsticks were not bent, and they notice the chopsticks actually match up perfectly. While the table is being set, Mary Aloe and the gang learn that Lily is upset with Ted. Mary Aloe then successfully guides Barney to a table with a happy couple. Ted explains to the group that Robin kissed him that morning. However, since she lives with the parents of Mary Aloe, they are all caught. Ted then reveals that he could have slept with Robin on the roof had he wanted to, but that he wanted to stay strong and let the woman be the first to sleep with him. The next day, after a failed attempt to find out the name of the cute girl he saw at Quinn's that night, Barney once again opens up to Ted about his feelings for Amy. Barney tells Ted that he wants to try again to impress Amy, although this time, he will pretend to be more confident. Meanwhile, Ted and Robin (still being maid of Ain't No Rest for the Wicked Ain't No Rest for the Wicked follows the story of Joseph Stagg, a young man on a journey of self discovery. This means that players can choose to explore the narrative through various interactions, for example seeing the real world scenarios through the eyes of characters like Joseph, or they can put the puzzle pieces together and figure out a greater story than what was included in the narrative. You can then uncover Joseph's true life story and path to redemption or learn about his fate and destiny. Whether you're choosing to reveal his destiny or his life story, some things will change for the better. In fact, just about everything will change. Joseph is bound to find a new friend, or a new enemy, or an old friend, or someone who will betray him, or even himself. He will learn what he really wants, what he really needs, and what he really wants from the people who mean the most.
