Could some user know a solution for this problem. A: The only way that would work for sure is if you can download the information you are requesting and then set it as a variable for your index file. A quick Google Search suggests one possible way to accomplish that. The code would look something like this: $website= ""; $test_content=get_file_contents($website); $test_content= trim($test_content); //set content to variable $latest_news = trim($test_content); Try this out and let me know if that actually works. Q: Why is my lens so scratchy? I just picked up a set of Nikon D3100 + 18-55 kit lens (this same kit lens comes with the D3300). It's quite nice to have the lens but I'm struck with the "bumpiness" of the image. I find it especially noticeable on backgrounds, such as grass. The lens is quite scratched and dull. It seems like I have to use higher iso or a certain aperture in order to get sharpness. Is the problem inherent to the lens? Does the kit lens have a problem of its own? A: Scratches are not caused by the lens itself (unless it is scratched). Scratches are caused by reflecting particles. Dust particles, hair, skin cells, sand on the lens, small feathers and flower petals are all large-size particle-like objects which can scratch the lens. Dirt and particles on the sensor are also likely to be a problem. You might be able to achieve some reduction in image-scratches by cleaning the camera sensor. The sensor is often made with an anti-reflection coating. You can safely use this coating as long as you don't make it too rough, which is likely to damage it. The sensor will often include a little suction ring to help in removing dust from it. You should be able to find this ring in the part number you can find on the front/bottom of the camera, or with a 0cc13bf012

A: you just missed a comma in your syntax. WHERE edicion.ID = (SELECT MAX(ID) FROM edicion WHERE banco = 'distribuciones') should be WHERE edicion.ID = (SELECT MAX(ID) FROM edicion WHERE banco = 'distribuciones') AND edicion.ID = (SELECT MAX(ID) FROM edicion WHERE banco = 'personalización') After finding the typo, it seemed to me that you should use some change-in-scope statement so to get the next row to be selected from the table by a subquery in the WHERE clause. For this you need to use a function-based RDBMS like PostgreSQL, see the example below: SELECT * FROM edicion WHERE edicion.ID = ( SELECT d.edicion_id FROM edicion d WHERE banco = 'distribuciones' AND (SELECT MAX(f.edicion_id) FROM edicion f WHERE f.banco = 'personalización') ) LIMIT 1; However, it is possible to select a specified number of the latest row for a table using the following query: SELECT * FROM edicion WHERE edicion.ID = ( SELECT d.edicion_id FROM edicion d WHERE banco = 'distribuciones' AND d.ID = ( SELECT MAX(f.edicion_id) FROM edicion f WHERE f.banco = 'personalización' ) ) ORDER BY edicion.
