Why have the Catholics not responded to this "situation?" The views expressed are those of the author and do not necessarily reflect the views of the editors or management of this website. Quote Just want to respond to the comment by someone stating that the RCs have not responded to his "situation." As a former Catholic, I can state with certainty that His Eminence was very well aware of his situation. A public confession is not something that the Bishop, in my opinion, even needs to consider. For those who may doubt this, you can read a statement made by (then) Bishop of Sacramento in 1993. Even IF the Bishop thinks the public confession is desirable, what would prevent a diocesan priest from confessing? Until you get into the issue of when and when not to confess, I don't see any point in commenting more. I do agree that the priest is more accountable for his state of mind and his obedience and more so, than the Bishop is accountable for his. The statement I originally referred to applied to the first response made to him by the Bishop. If the Bishop does not respond to a complaint, then the priest has the right to go to the media to make his case, if he deems it necessary. I think anyone who is honest and aware of the situation should understand that the Bishop and the Bishops Association (the entity that regulates the Priests) are also aware of his situation. I guess as long as no one is dead, it wouldn't be "news," would it? On second thought, maybe the people are dead and he just got the word of his state of being stuck in Purgatory. To To clarify, my views on a diocesan priest being accountable to his Bishop are in no way, shape, or form an attempt to seek the removal of the

What's new:

Gangsta Magic is the fifth studio album by American rapper Ice Cube, released August 30, 1993, by Priority Records. It was his first release after being released from his record deal with Atlantic Records. Gangsta Magic would be the last album to feature Ice Cube as the sole collaborator as he would continue on to work with producers mainly through Tommy Lipova, as well as having several different song writers collaborate on certain tracks. The album features the singles "Check Yo Self", "Mama Said Knock You Out", and "P.S. I LOVE U", which became his first Billboard Hot 100 top 40 hit. With Gangsta Magic, Ice Cube became the only American hip hop artist during the 1990s to achieve his first three No. 1 singles, culminating with the single "Check Yo Self". Gangsta Magic was certified double platinum by the RIAA. In his history, Gangsta Magic, along with its previous album, 1992's Laugh Now, Cry Later, was described in the Encyclopedia of Popular Music as "consistently solid and gritty urban beats, gritty urban subject matter." Composition Priority Records sought to create the biggest album that Ice Cube had ever released. Hence, the album was almost entirely composed of hard rock-inspired rap songs. This album's lyrics are more of a constant theme, especially about unconventional individuals such as multi-polar criminals, women, rappers and more. In its lyrics, Ice Cube would mix his vocabulary from speech with rap, making his words more metaphoric and imaginative. For example, in the song "P.S. I Love U", he used an imaginary language. In another song, "I-I-I-I-I-I-I", he stated, "I be in the docks or kitchens with brick boys in the buildings they talkin' about life's livin' for thugging". "Jackin' for Beats" contains lyrical references to the music group Parliament Funkadelic. In "Champion", Ice Cube raps, "Now we have a champion, we can keep on", referring to a concert he made in Brooklyn. "Sammich" features a reference to the TV show Seinfeld titled "The Nap", which is a play on the George Costanza TV show. Critical reception Gangsta Magic received positive reviews from music critics. In a retrospective review, Stephen Thomas Erlewine wrote about the album for Allmusic; "Ice Cube's early solo work
