26, 2016 The Debate About Don't Americans are still living in a state of denial about the real problem: the fraud in their media and politics. The reason is simple. They are living under the delusion that if they just attend another "free" election (that is, if they vote for Hillary, she will spend a few trillion in their behalf) that the fraud will all go away. This is a dangerous delusion because those who perpetrate the fraud are already in power, and they control the levers of power. They will not give up their power easily, or quit their grift. Then again, such is the American character. It isn't just about the electoral college and voter fraud
