means: if you have three true (1.0.0.0) you will see: 1.0.0.0.0.0.0.0.1.1.1.1.1.1 The notation 1.0.0.0.1.0.0.0.0.1.1.1.1.1.1.0.0.0.0.1.0.1 means: value is zero. value is one. value is the lower two bits. value is the higher two bits. See Though I am not able to test this, it should be true. BTW, I hope to see your results here. A: Well first to find a solution, let's first look at the problem; in this case the variable is built of double, and has value 0.0 = 1.0/0.0. so they would be equal... but that's not what you want, you want them to be equal. I'm assuming you want to concatenate them because you want to create a string that would represent the sequence of numbers. To fix the issue the two values you want to concatenate need to be represented as a string. for this purpose you would create a string from a character vector of length three, and then concatenate the strings. So for example: Suppose we want to create a string of n elements, so first we have to identify how many elements there are. m
