Drivers.Kworld.330.340.115.315.The call for moving President Donald Trump's State of the Union, scheduled for January 30, to a public emergency event at the Capitol will be in order on Monday, March 9. The move, led by the chair of the House Rules Committee, Rep. Jim McGovern, D-Mass., is one of the few steps Congress could take to defy a White House order to shutter the federal government in the face of the threat of a government shutdown. Speaking with reporters outside the Capitol on Monday, McGovern said the move would be a "proportional" response to Trump's "extremely irrational behavior." "I don't think it's a question whether we will do it," he said. "There is no reason that we should. So we are preparing a memo that would be posted publicly for the State of the Union which will be an almost certainly precedent setting action to tell the president that under normal circumstances, the Committee would not be inclined to hold a State of the Union Address in this kind of climate." While the president has not yet responded to McGovern's proposal, a Trump administration official told NPR that the decision to move the speech would have no impact on the event's content, and that the draft would be released in advance of the president's remarks. "The president will speak on January 30, as planned. There will be no change to the plan," said the official. "
