You start out as a lowly Apprentice that can summon creatures but it has a very short lifespan. If you are ready to take on the mantle of a summoner, then the next level is Trainee. This level will allow you to craft potions and scrolls to add unique abilities to your summons. The more you craft the faster your spells will get. You will find that it is a never ending battle and as you make progress you will always need to improve your skill set. When you level up to Grandmaster, you will be able to summon powerful creatures and cast mighty spells. The more spells you learn, the more powerful your monsters will be. You can only learn a limited number of spells but you will always need to be improving and learning new spells. Summoning spells will be hugely powerful. It is critical to learn the 2 most powerful spells. It is at this point where you have built up enough strength and money to begin a PVP quest. The PVP campaign will have you fighting other summoners all over magical land. Your goal is to defeat their summoned monsters and steal their items. It will involve great strategy, cooperation, and competition. You must learn to partner up in order to win.

Key:

- The same mechanic as dungeon exploring/delving into treasure trove buildings - one or more special chests located deep inside a structure or type of your choice (temple, graveyards, docks, etc).
- By clicking these chests, relevant game play mechanic(s) are triggered. For example, if a chest has a "Hideous screech" tile on it, clicking the chest triggers a monster encounter. In the case of a well, "Bottomless hand" tiles on chests can be clicked to have the player dig it to check for valuable/useful resources which are otherwise hidden from view
- Players can visit any number of these special chests.
- You can set and use your own Buildmark "Game Key" which can be found whenever you visit a room and look for a Buildmark
- You can decide if you want to fill your Key with "Sounds" or not, on a day-to-day basis
- You can fill the Key either by thinking of the sound/sounds that you want to use or by having relevant assets in your hoard (e.g. gem fragments, treasures, etc)
- The number of checked chests (of different types) is fixed at start of the game.
- You can choose any number of buildings and specialties, such as castle, city, tree, well, temple, etc. You can have one for every new play or one for every play depending on your preference
- You can decide if you want to keep specific special traits, e.g. you can decide if you want to have a shrine/well in your room as long as there is a seashore nearby
- You can decide how often you want to create a Key (e.g. every building or every 7 building, or every 2 hours)
- You can decide if you want to hide a certain type of chests, or perform a different action when clicking them
- You can decide not to let players visit some special chests.
- You can set certain sound tiles to always trigger or always not trigger a specified game mechanic

It must be some differences, because the mac version is kind of unplayable and the windows version can actually be played. The mac version is a very weak version that has the same game, but a completely different GUI. And the windows version is a completely different game with a completely different game interface. The mac version is not even translated, and I'm kinda disappointed for a mac version because it's something that was already promised.[The change of metallothionein 1/2 mRNA in the rat heart and liver under various types of ischemic myocardial injury]. In the hearts of rats subjected to a 5-min ischemia and a 15-min ischemia followed by reperfusion, the quantity of MT1/2 mRNA was increased both at the early stage and the late stage of reperfusion, but the increase was significant only at the early stage. The increase in the expression of MT1/2 mRNA was also observed in the livers of rats with a 5-min ischemia, a 5-min ischemia followed by a 15-min ischemia, and c9d1549cdd

The Hiryū is a heavy battle cruiser in the new line of heavy cruisers being developed for the Japanese Defense Force. The Hiryū is the fastest and most powerful of the heavy cruisers. The Hiryū is equipped with two 12cm guns and 18-40mm guns and is protected by nine layers of armor. The IJN fast battleships, although not quite as powerful as the modern battleships, were more maneuverable and could fire longer and heavier shells than the all battleships. They were slower than all battleships, but were good for scouting and for providing protection for the light battleships. Each battleship carried one torpedo tube and eight 20cm guns and were equipped with a full flight of torpedo planes. IJN battleships also carried only one gun turret equipped with six 20cm guns and so were more lightly armed than the all battleships. The IJN battleships carried five aircraft: one anti-torpedo aircraft, one fighter and three dive-bombers.

The capital ships of the Imperial Japanese Navy (IJN) were developed as a relatively small fleet to be used for operations against the United States Navy. The IJN viewed America as a potential threat to Japan's colony system in Asia and had no desire to test its ability to fight against a more powerful opponent than Japan's other Asian opponents. The battleships consisted of the Yamato-class battleship, the Nagato-class battleship, the Knyan-class battleship, the Akizuki-class battleship, the Chokai-class battleship, and the Hiei-class battleship. These ships were the heaviest naval battleships in the world and were some of the largest ships ever built. When construction of the IJN's battleships began, their design and firepower were modeled on the battleships of the German Navy. Although these battleships were
