Adobe Photoshop was founded in 1988. Photoshop is considered the most used graphics software in the world, with over three billion license copies. Photoshop is the best known product of Adobe. After 10 years of success, Creative Cloud is launched in 2013, which combines the subscription services of Photoshop, Illustrator, Lightroom, After effects and other Adobe products. During the opening ceremony, Adobe's chief executive officer, Shantanu Narayen, said: "We always knew that subscription would be the future. It is the best way to continue to innovate and keep our customers up-to-date without the need to buy new software, hardware or apps." The subscription service covers up to five users. This is a major advantage, because the first version of Elements was designed for one user. Pricing is calculated per month, in which the customer pays the sum in advance. The cost of the service for one user is less than the cost of a license of the software. All the features of the latest version of Photoshop are available through the subscription service for a monthly fee. For example, the service costs around $79 per month. This is good news for Photoshop fans, because the cost of a traditional Photoshop license is much higher. The price depends on the version and the number of users. For example, the price of a license for a single user is about $450. That's the way it is calculated.
