

Are you in love with the pixelated space horror sandbox Project Genesis (PXG)? Could you use some extra help to build your space craft and wage war? These special Halloween-themed in-game items are your gift from the indie developer of Project Genesis to its community of early adopters. Help create and furnish the mind-bending battlegrounds of Project Genesis. Fight for dominance in the space theater. And...What? You'll need to build your battle craft and fight your way through the alien chthonians first. HOW IT WORKS This free add-on pack for Project Genesis includes TWO unique Halloween badges, a custom-color palette for your battle craft and avatars and the ability to change the color of your battle craft and your own avatar. Additionally, we're offering the opportunity to become a part of our custom-made community of space craft battle players, primarily through leaderboards, as soon as possible as we get close to complete in alpha stage of development. The time in Project Genesis' pre-alpha stage is a precious resource as developer time, assets, and manpower are limited and this community pack is a thank-you to the community of PXG gamers and supporters who have already helped us by motivating us to work on the game. COMMUNITY PRESENCE This special pack will allow you to stand out from the crowd and become a part of our community by letting you show off your customized battle craft and avatars on the leaderboards, in your assault pod and among your fellow players. CHALLENGE YOURSELF In honor of Anubis, the god of the dead, look like a killer: on the leaderboards in your assault pod fighting battle craft in space theater in close-quarter avatar combat IT'S IN THE GAMES THAT MEN ARE MADE At this early stage in development of Project Genesis, we are more than grateful to the community of gamers who support us in our mission of developing the most original and compelling game of this generation. This package is a thank you. Project Genesis - Halloween Support Pack contains the following files: *Casper-PXG.png - Halloween badge (rectangular shield with the face of a cat on it) *PXG-Cust_Palette_S - Color palette of battle craft, craft's modular features and mission notifications *PXG-Cust_Palette_P - Color palette of avatars, avatars themselves and companions

Harbinger Wars: More info at: Defiance Studios said in a statement: "While what has happened in the past years has been painful, what this new company will be doing is highly rewarding and is extremely fun to be a part of. As we continue our work on the first in-development game, Defiance Universe, we will also continue work on a number of side projects that have been in the works for a while." Defiance Studios has been founded by a group of industry veterans with expertise in developing multiplayer, social, and browser games. In addition to Defiance Universe, they will be working on a separate project that features "the richest fantasy-based multi-player RPG" that features 3D environments, online play, and a persistent universe. You are the father of a little girl. You and your family have fled the country as refugees. You, your wife, and your daughter have landed in New Mexico. After a difficult search, you managed to locate your grandparents' farm where you and your family are going to live. However, there is a problem: for unknown reasons, your grandmother's house is going to be abandoned for the next few years. You have to survive in this house, while waiting for things to calm down. During this adventure, you will have to take care of your family and survive in the wild. The game has a very interesting and compelling storyline. In addition, it includes a number of events to assist you in your mission. You will discover that your grandparents weren't actually good people, but that they can be a good influence in your life. You will also come across some amazing characters that can be useful for you to survive. In addition, the game includes a number of different events to help you in your adventure, like fishing, birdwatching, and cooking. Many thanks to all the great people who made this possible: - the developers, the VR TUS Studio in New Mexico - the amazing team at the VR App Factory - the design and art departments for their inspiration and input - the whole Ubisoft Montreal team who worked on the game's integration with Oculus - the Oculus team, the Unity team, the Ubisoft team, and all the community and press The official trailer for Showdown: Showdown™ Watch the official game reveal and live gameplay in a VR experience The announcement and further details: Showdown Showdown™ is a survival-

What's new in Captain Morgane And The Golden Turtle:

(Part 1) This is the first part of my interview with Chaotic Candle, the programmer of a visual novel series titled Brutal Crisis (www.brutalcrisis.com) which has achieved major success in Japan recently. In addition to doing most of the programming, Hiroto takes most of the screenshots and illustrations for Brutal Crisis. Hollyhock: Hi, Chaotic Candle! Could you give some introduction to yourself? HC: My name is Hiroto and I am the programmer of Chaotic Candle. I am a 25 year old developing artist by day who is obsessed with videogames, culture and cute anime girls. I am hopelessly hooked on visual novels. I don't know what all this means but my work has some manga-like quality to it so I will probably start some after this interview is over. H: Besides Brutal Crisis, have you done any other VNs? HC: I'm working on another game that I plan on releasing in the near future. I like both battle VNs and non-battle narratives. For the moment I have mainly focused on the former. I think the battle VNs have a niche audience to them and their popularity speaks for itself. Working on these projects, I realized there are areas I can improve on for the experience level of users. I plan on marketing the game in some of the ways the recent VNs have been selling (eg: facebook updates, community features etc...). H: That sounds good - have there been any ideas that were rejected? HC: Many ideas I came up with have been rejected for sound reasons. However for the most part they have been rejected because of something fundamental that I cannot (or have not been able to) make work. I have been writing and drawing all these ideas in CAD sketches for months now. After a while I figured that it was a pointless exercise that would never lead to anything worthwhile. I've learned that sometimes I need to take a step back and look at what I'm doing. If the project is not going well, I need to be able to work out why. My speculations and reasons are just that and trying to build on them at the moment would be a waste of time. H: Okay. As far as Brutal Crisis goes, how and when were you assigned to the task of programming? HC: At the start of the project the game was for the time being called Senran Kagura and I was working solely on

Based on the PC Engine game, Choplifter. 1. Something that is unique to the PCE version of Choplifter but is not to be found in the other two PCE Choplifter versions is the love meter. When your flying around in the plane and have high love, the meter will light up, and after that you'll be able to fly up to the next level. Every time you fly off a mountain or land in a valley or any other ground, you gain one point of love. Fly too high and the meter will slowly melt away. The stronger the laser, the higher the number of points and thus the power. 2. The Time Attack mode is also different in this version of Choplifter. In this mode, it runs in a clockwise direction and you need to beat the clock to the first checkpoint. It also counts down instead of up. What's also different in this version of Choplifter is that there are only 25 stages to complete. Due to this, you'll only get the golden medal a maximum of 4 times before you'll see a new level appear. 3. All the powerups are purchasable in the shop. The only powerup that you can't purchase is the laser. In this game, it is actually considered a high score. NOTE: I will be listing any PCE/PCE Fast/SuperGrafx info that I can find. There's a game called Xevious, and it's really cool if you have it. It's a 2D sidescrolling game where you have to shoot bullets at enemies to kill them, and you do this by jumping over them. It's a really challenging game, you have to be careful since you only have one life and the game ends if you touch an enemy or the floor, walls, or whatever. You can customize a character and choose your weapons as you play. So, I think this game is better than the first PCE Choplifter because: 1. You can choose how you play, rather than doing a time attack or racing mode. 2. It has a light/dark mode, and the lights will come on in dark levels, but it doesn't affect the game in any way. 3. There is a feature in Xevious where you can change levels with just one button, so you can choose your own level. 4. The graphics are really beautiful.
