To systematically review and summarize prognostic factors for the patients with ANCA-associated vasculitis (AAV) across different studies. PubMed, EMBASE, Web of Science, Cochrane Library, CBM and WANFANG were searched to identify relevant studies using the terms for 'antineutrophil cytoplasmic antibody associated vasculitis' or 'AAV' and 'prognosis'. Data were extracted and analyzed using Review Manager 5.3. The 10 included studies included a total of 3480 patients and they were all retrospective. The results revealed that advanced stage, highly erosive disease, multiple extranodal involvement, severe renal and poor renal outcome were poor prognostic factors.Indian Grand Prix, 2006 The middle-of-the-road Indian Grand Prix was won by the big five, McLaren, Ferrari, Renault, BMW and Williams. The 2006 race was notable for being the race where the Big Five fought their way to 1-2-3 for the first time ever. It was also notable for being the last race of the F1 season for a while, and also for the first race for Sauber, a team launched in March 2006 and only just making its first appearance in the Championship. It was also the first time that the 2004 World Champion, Kimi Raikkonen, raced for Ferrari. The pre-season favourite for the victory was McLaren, who had won the last two years running. They were clear favourites to take the championship lead for the second time in a row. The other 3 teams needed to be exceptional to put a challenge in their way, and in the end they did just that. The front row was the winner of the other championship battle, Nico Rosberg leading home Michael Schumacher at the front. Schumacher had been third or fourth in previous races and had been steadily losing ground to Raikkonen, before getting caught out by the Finn on lap 8. He was promoted from fourth place, a position he could have reasonably expected to retain, to third, and then second. 6d1f23a050
