I am able to set a custom page using Route::get('error/{message}', 'HomeController@error'); However, if someone were to enter mydomain.com/admin when no admin exists, then I would like them to be directed to mydomain.com/dashboard/admin, which is what is defined in my routes file. I have tried setting up a route like so, with the 'admin' parameter, which worked well, but it does not seem to be working out. I still get a 404 when someone enters mydomain.com/admin into my browser. Route::get('{message}', 'HomeController@error'); A: Use the middleware for 404: Route::get('{message}', 'HomeController@error'); Route::middleware('errors.api')->group(function () { Route::get('{message}', 'HomeController@error'); }); Laravel docs A massive thank you to everyone who took a part in the 2020 Scrabble Open. With your help, we were able to deliver our first ever Airdrop of L2O tokens and grow the L2O Community. Background While any playathon brings with it the risk of tokens being exchanged for Scrabble tiles, the sole purpose of this playathon was to raise funds for a good cause. All funds raised will go to Karolius, a charitable organisation operating within the Lithuanian food industry, and help those in need. The exact cause of the playathon is when Karolius was approached by the Lithuanian Embassy in 2019, to collect three bags of discarded food from all the people attending the 2019 Lithuanian Scrabble Championship. The embassy then passed the bags on to Karolius. Karolius was then able to collect food from all those who travelled to the championship, and then set it out for people to use, free of charge. The purpose of the playathon was to raise funds for Karolius, allowing them to deliver the first ever Lithuan 6d1f23a050
